REFLECTION

In Sunday's Gospel, a terrible thing has happened. The occupying Romans have killed several Galileans and mixed their blood with that of the Roman sacrifices, utterly disrespecting the slain people. Jesus's reaction is to assure his audience that the victims of this massacre were no more sinful than anyone else. No one should consider him- or herself better or more worthy than another. Rather, all should strive to repent of their sins. Jesus then goes on to tell a story of a fig tree that isn't bearing fruit. The fig tree represents leaders at the time, but could represent us today, as well. The Good News is that God, like the gardener in the story, is willing to give us another chance to become fruitful. God—and the gardener—are even set to cultivate the tree, unproductive leadership, or us with fertilizer to help us along. God, the great I AM, out of love and mercy offers us a land flowing with milk and honey despite our frailty. Let us remember we are a community of equals and commit to bearing much good fruit for one another as God intends.

REFLEXIÓN

En el Evangelio del domingo, ha sucedido algo terrible. Los romanos ocupantes mataron a varios galileos y mezclaron su sangre con la de los sacrificios romanos, faltando el respeto por completo a las personas asesinadas. La reacción de Jesús es asegurar a su audiencia que las víctimas de esta masacre no eran más pecadoras que nadie. Nadie debe considerarse mejor o más digno que otro. Más bien, todos deben esforzarse por arrepentirse de sus pecados. Luego, Jesús continúa contando la historia de una higuera que no da fruto. La higuera representa a los líderes en ese momento, pero también podría representarnos a nosotros hoy. La buena noticia es que Dios, como el jardinero de la historia, está dispuesto a darnos otra oportunidad de ser fructíferos. Dios, y el jardinero, incluso están listos para cultivar el árbol, el liderazgo improductivo o nosotros con fertilizante para ayudarnos. Dios, el gran YO SOY, por amor y misericordia nos ofrece una tierra que mana leche y miel a pesar de nuestra fragilidad. Recordemos que somos una comunidad de iguales y comprometámonos a dar buenos frutos unos a otros como Dios quiere.

LECTURAS PARA LA PROXIMA SEMANA
